Mayor Wm. Meeks Passes Suddenly

Stricken by a sudden and severe heart attack Sunday afternoon last, while visiting with relatives in Barnwell district, William G. Meeks, Chief Magistrate of the Town and prominent citizen of Southern Alberta, passed away on the road east of Lethbridge as he was on his way to the Hospital for treatment.

He was not feeling so very good Sunday morning, and had not risen very early but during the forenoon he felt better, he arose, ate a fairly good breakfast, and left about noon in the car with Mrs. Meeks for a drive. They first went to Lethbridge where they made a call or two on sick people who were in the Hospital there, and afterwards continued on to Barnwell to visit Mrs. LaRue Palmer and her husband, along with others.

They decided on a lunch on Chin Coulee, and while on the outing the first severe attack came to deceased about 4 p.m. The pain in the region of his heart continued, and the party went back to Barnwell, and immediately endeavored to find a physician. Failing to locate the Taber Doctors, they phoned Dr. Fowler at Lethbridge who was located, and asked to meet the party on the road. The cars met east of the Jail Farm a mile or so, on the Coaldale road, and the Dr. examined deceased, and stated that his pulse felt pretty strong, and he thought he was perfectly safe to continue on into the Hospital.

The cars continued on, with the late Mayor in the back of his own car, where he could relax, and Mrs. Meeks and Edwin Palmer in the front seat, the latter driving. They had only proceeded a mile or so, when they heard a slight gasp, and turned around to see the sick man slumped over in his seat. They immediately stopped, and the Doctor, who was following just behind rushed to the Meeks car, but could feel no pulse or heart action. Stimulants were given by injection, to try and revive the heart action, but without avail. The body was taken on into Lethbridge and Christensen Bros. took charge of it.

Sorrow filled the hearts of all Raymond people, who were shocked almost beyond words as the news of the very sudden and unexpected passing spread about the Town. The Mayor had endeared himself to all through his charity, self-sacrifice and service to his Town, which he had served so well as Mayor, and to his fellowmen. The sympathy of the Town and district is extended to the relatives, and especially his wife, in their hour of sadness, distress and loneliness following the passing of such a good and great man.

BIOGRAPHICAL

Mayor Wm. G. Meeks was the oldest son of Wm. Meeks and Sarah Gardner Meeks, both from sturdy pioneer stock. He was born in Pine Valley, Utah October 9th, 1873 and when five years old his parents with three children, in order to find better cattle range, moved into Wayne Co. Utah, and took up a homestead in a new and unsettled valley, called by the early explorers, Rabbit Valley. The Country was new, and for they east in the Henry Mountains, the winters were warmer. The cattle did not die, there was little sale for them in that early day, and naturally enough, the father of Mayor Meeks became one of the leading stockmen of the Rabbit Valley country. Will grew up on the range, with the cattle, and naturally, had only limited opportunity for schooling, but even so, he fitted himself to successfully do business and hold his own with the cattle dealers who periodically came to buy the steers for the markets of Kansas City and Chicago.

Having assisted his father in pioneering in Wayne County, Utah, and the Meeks cattle being too numerous for the ranges available, when Will married, and started thinking of making a start, he looked for more new country, and came to Canada in 1903, at the age of thirty, and for the past thirty three years, has successfully engaged in ranching and farming.

Naturally a lover of sports, he began to develop and breed fast horses, and the name of Meeks is generally known on all the Race Courses in the West, as well as in the United States and Mexico.

He filled a mission for the Church about 1918, and because of the death of his brother Jim's wife, he returned home and with his good wife May Stringham Meeks, assumed the responsibility of caring for the family.

The Stringham family, furnished wives for both Will and Jim, and they were sturdy pioneers, as both the wives came to Canada with the same spirit of winning that Will and Jim possessed, and after the passing of Jim's wife, more of Will's time was occupied locally. He held the office of Town Councillor soon after moving to Town from the Ranch, along about 1911, and showed his capacity for business of that class of work, and while he did not solicit a nomination, he was elected to the Town Council again in 1927, and has held office of councillor or Mayor of the Town for almost ten years continuously.

His even temperament, his sound judgment, and his capacity for service, has made him equal to the task of carrying on during the years of the depression, both in Town and in his private business in a way to show the people his great merit as a citizen and community builder. The Raymond Board of Trade, The Raymond Stampede, The Raymond Opera House and most other public enterprises have developed better because of his backing, and in his passing the community has lost one of her most loyal, capable and enterprising community builders.

FUNERAL SERVICES

Funeral services were held in the Stake House Thursday at 2 p.m., the building being filled to capacity by those who paused in their daily avocations of life to pay their respects to a friend. Bishop J. Orvin Hicken took charge of the services and the combined Choirs of both Wards were led by W. W. McMullin with Roi Stone at the organ. Flowers covered the entire front of the stand, as well as two large flower racks, bearing silent but forceful testimony to the esteem in which deceased was held.

Hymns by the Choir were: "Oh My Father," and "Sometime, We'll Understand." Special musical numbers: Solo by Mrs. O. H. Snow, assisted by the Choir "I Have Read of a Beautiful City," Solo "Danny Boy," Jos. McLean, and Solo by Edwin Palmer, "Wanted on the Other Side."

Elder J. W. Evans offered the Invocation, Bishop J. H. Walker the benediction, and

Porter Baby Passes Away

Jessie Anne, the two months old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Porter, passed away just about noon Thursday, following two months of sickness, not having been well since birth. The immediate cause of death was an enlarged liver.

The baby seemed to be as well as usual Thursday morning the mother being in the Garage with her husband at 10:30 or so. Returning home a change was noticed, and the Doctor was immediately summoned, and all that was humanly possible was done to relieve the suffering and revive the baby but without avail.

The sympathy of the district is extended to the parents in their bereavement as this was their first child. Funeral services are being held in Medicine Hat.

Get The Children Registered

On another page of this paper is a Notice to parents who will have children entering School in the Beginner's class this coming term. We urge everyone to read it and to tell their neighbors about it.

Without repeating all the details here. If your child will be 6 on or before October 15th, he or she must be registered before June 27th with the principal to insure entrance this term. Do not delay making the registration, as in case of an overflow it is likely that the names will be treated in order of the registration with Mr. Hicken.

Ray Knight was in Sweet Grass last week end clearing a bunch of horses he had sold to a United States buyer. There were about 50 head in the bunch, 38 of them having been purchased from Mr. Knight. All were 15 hands or over, clear color, either bay, brown or sorrel, 3/4 thoroughbred, and according to those who saw them a real feast to the eyes of lovers of horse flesh. They were billed to Bozeman, Montana. Ray stated the price was very satisfactory.

The Parade Committee have been working hard the last week, and have plans complete now for the biggest and best parade ever held in the Sugar City. That is saying a great deal, for we have had some outstanding parades in the past, but the Committee maintain that the only thing that will prevent the one this year from outstripping all others will be the refusal of the public to join in and make it a success.

A large number of the business houses are being asked to prepare floats for it, and where floats are not possible, a well decorated car is asked for, so that every business in the Town, both large and small will be represented as well as dozens of individuals who are decorating their cars, trucks etc to join in. Cowboys, Indians, bicycles, and all kinds of features will be introduced to make this the success it should be. The Hungarian Benefit Society and representatives of all the other nationalities in the district, with the Japanese people are being asked to represent their own countries in costume and decoration.

One thing that should assist to make the Parade successful is the fact that it will be held the second day of the Stampede on Dominion Day, commencing at 9 a.m. This will mean that all the Riders Ropers, and performers of the Stampede will be here to add color to the event as well as to increase its interest.

The Committee invites everyone to join in with their original ideas, and any suggestions to make the Parade more successful will be welcomed by those in charge. Good prizes are being given, and it is hoped that this will increase the interest.

A TRIBUTE TO A GREAT MAN

With a feeling of sadness we undertake this task of paying tribute through these columns to the cherished memory of a man, whom in our opinion, entitled to be called great. We refer to our beloved and respected Mayor, William C. Meeks, whose sudden and unexpected passing on Sunday afternoon last brought sadness to the hearts of thousands of his acquaintances.

For the past sixteen months it has been the privilege of the writer to sit at his side in the council chamber of the Town and assist in handling the affairs of the Town. Because of these associations, and the countless meetings and discussions that Town affairs have caused between us, I feel that I really appreciate the deceased one had to know him intimately and to see him in various con-

He was a man of wisdom, keen judgment and sagacity. His consideration of a matter was always calm and deliberate, and when a decision was rendered he always had satisfied himself that it was fair and square. No matter of town business was too small for his personal attention, and to the friendless and needy he was friendly, considerate and indulgent. His acts of pure charity, especially those of the thousands, and yet as far as Mr. Meeks was concerned, just a neighborly act and nothing was ever said about it. He always had time to visit the sick in the hospitals, whether they were in intimate friends or chance acquaintances made no difference. When occasion required transfer of the sick to hospital he was always ready and eager to go and people without means of transportation, wanting to visit relatives and friends in the hospital always found a seat and were welcomed in his car.

In his position as Mayor he had fathered a number of projects through to successful completion, and had several other important affairs well in hand and on the way to successful completion. Hardly a week passed, but two or three trips were made to Lethbridge to confer with Government officials on Town affairs, and despite the opposition, he always contended for what he thought was the rights of the Town, and never gave in until he was sure submission was the proper way.

Columns could be written of his acts of kindness in feeding the poor, caring for the needy and providing work for those who needed assistance financially. A hard worker himself, he disliked laziness and slothfulness, and did all he could to discourage this. By many, he was misjudged because of his quiet and unassuming manner, and was thought to have been disinterested in many matters. To those who knew him best he was always discussing every affair of the Town, and in his quiet way, sometimes in a round about manner, lending his assistance to these projects.

It will be years before the gap that he has left in the community can be filled. Many years he served as Councillor before elected Mayor, & his record will stand for his service in this capacity. He was a Stamped, booster and was always ready to do anything or make any sacrifice with his time and property to make this annual event a success. As a stockman, he and his brother James have been successful, taking their profits and losses as part of the business, and always striving to benefit the country with better stock. Breeders of race horses, their names have been made famous, and yet it has been the love of fine horses and good cattle that has kept them in the business more than the money, which might be made from such ventures.

A familiar figure has been cut down, with what we thought the best years of his life still ahead. In nearly every organization in the community his wisdom and influence will be greatly missed. The Town and Southern Alberta is mourning his passing. To the wife and brothers, sisters and other relatives, we extend our sincere sympathy, and hope that the memory of the good he has accomplished and which will live after him, will in some measure heal the wound of the very sudden and unexpected death which came to him.

CAREER WOMEN

The regiments of women invading the fields of industry, commerce, science and art are annually growing to such proportions that one cannot but realize that this movement away from the sheltered life is for women the symbol of a new era.

But in carving this new life of hers, woman should not make the tragic mistake of underestimating the importance of her personal loveliness. For when she becomes merely a brain or an energy unit, she has definitely thrown away her birthright. The women of Russia tried this way and could not find happiness or satisfaction. They discovered that they will always crave beauty and will search for it.

Commercial success is often fickle, but cultivated beauty is an investment that yields increasing results with the passing years. The Empress Eugenie at ninety was as lovely as a woman, in her forties. And yet she had one of the most brilliant minds of her day.

Smart clothes alone will not create beauty for the business woman; nor will a facial treatment once a month undo daily neglect. So often we see women gorgeously gowned, with faded skins and drooping contours that draw the eyes in spite of their fashionable clothes.

If time is precious, the beauty regime can be calculated to give the maximum in the shortest possible space of time. Fifteen minutes a day is not much and yet it will suffice, if faithfully adhered to.

There are important points to be touched upon in this quarter of an hour, the first of which is cleansing with a pasteurized cream. Old makeup and the day's accumulation of dust do great damage to the texture if pore deep cleansing is not practised every night. The next important steps are a youthifying stimulant, and a

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

PROTECT

To enjoy the advantages which medical science has made available in the prevention of disease it is necessary to look ahead and not to put off taking action.

During the summer months most of the communicable diseases are at a low ebb. There are certain explanations offered for this seasonal variation. We mention it here lest the summer decline be used as an excuse for delay, with the idea in mind that the danger is past.

Now is the best time to look ahead and to realize that with the coming of colder weather, in just a few months there will likely occur the normal seasonal increase in communicable diseases.

Unfortunately, our knowledge is limited and so we do not possess the means for the prevention or adequate control of many diseases. Fortunately, however we have had given to us practical, simple & safe procedures to prevent some.

One of the most persistent disease enemies of children is diphtheria. For many years this disease was responsible for a large number of deaths. The larger centres of population were never free from it, and parents dreaded the name diphtheria.

Diphtheria need no longer be feared. We are fully armed to fight successfully this old enemy. This statement is not bravado; it can be supported by the proof of what has happened during recent years in those places where the child population has been immunized.

Immunization is a simple and safe procedure. It means the injection of diphtheria toxoid under the skin. This toxoid stimulates the body to produce its natural defence against diphtheria. The result is that the injected person becomes resistant or immune, just as he would be after recovery from an attack of diphtheria, except that with toxoid, there is neither danger nor suffering involved.

Diphtheria occurs commonly in early life. Every child should be immunized before he is a year old or else he may contract the disease before he has had a chance to secure protection. It is a responsibility of the parents no one else can be held accountable. You can have your child protected against diphtheria, but you must take the necessary steps to have it done; otherwise your child is not protected.

There is no better time than the present for this and by having the diphtheria toxoid given now, you can rule out one disease danger for your child. Why then delay to protect?

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St. Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

WEED CONTROL

Now that seeding operations are completed for this season our thoughts are naturally centered upon giving our crops as favorable conditions for growth as possible, so that maximum yields may be obtained. The providing of an ample supply of moisture, wherever this is possible by means of irrigating, and the controlling of weed growth will probably be two of the most important problems commanding attention during the next few months. The control of weed growth is not only important for the present crop but it is also essential in order to provide clean land for next year's crop.

In exterminating weeds one should be familiar with their habit of growth, as different types of weeds call for different methods of handling. For example, annual weeds, such as Stinkweed, Russian Thistle, Wild Oats, Green Foxtail, Wild Buckweed, Pigweed, etc., are propagated solely from seeds; any method, therefore, which will prevent them from forming seed should combat them successfully. Perennials, on the other hand, propagate themselves in different ways and are much more difficult to control. They all produce seed and their root systems vary with the different species. Some have exceedingly deep creeping root systems which are most difficult to control. Russian Knapweed and Hoary Cress, two new weeds which have been appearing in the Lethbridge district in recent years, are good examples of weeds with this type of system. Others of this class are Canada Thistle, Perennial Sow Thistle, Field Bindweed and Blue Lettuce. Some perennials, such as Couch Grass, have a more shallow creeping root system, while still another class, of which dandelion is an example, extend only slowly from the root but produce an abundance of seed.

In order to control perennial weeds we must not only prevent them from forming seed but we must destroy their root systems. Deep ploughing is the most effective means of combatting them and the best time for doing this is just before the plants bloom, as they are approaching their weakest stage at that time.

We need not hope to eventually make our district free from weeds, no more than we can hope to free it from insect pests, but our aim should be to keep their numbers as low as possible, and particularly to prevent weeds from becoming established. A little Atlacide or some other chemical on small patches where new weeds appear will prove much more effective and economical than trying to control them with farm implements after they have become scattered throughout our fields.

Examinations are being written off now both at the High School and Public School grades. They will not finish until the 30th of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Oliver of Calgary, spent the week-end in Raymond with relatives, returning Sunday night to their home.

12 drownings were reported in Canada over the week-end. Manitoba and Saskatchewan had four each and Ontario and Quebec two each.

The Stampede Publicity crew went to Lethbridge and west to Macleod, Pincher Creek, Waterton Park, Cardston, etc., on Tuesday of this week.

M. T. Kin is going to attend Summer School in either Logan or Salt Lake City during the holidays, taking a six weeks course.

Stores and offices in the Town were closed Thursday afternoon out of respect to the late Mayor Meeks, whose sudden passing Sunday was such a shock to the Town and all of Southern Alberta.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, and his party will be in Lethbridge and district for nearly five days according to present schedule. They will arrive Sunday, Sept. 6, and remain until the Thursday of that week.

The cement sidewalk on the street north of the Second Ward Chapel was put down Monday. This will make a splendid addition to these premises especially when some cinders are put on the street there to add to the parking space around the Chapel.

The half of town west of Broadway had Tuesday for their inoculation. A good percentage of them called at the Town Hall for their treatment, and during the remainder of the day affectionate hands and fingers kept massaging the point where the needle had entered. We understand the same order will be followed next week; viz. the School Monday, First Ward Tuesday and Second Ward Wednesday.

MAYOR WM. MECKS PASSES SUDDENLY

The Grave was dedicated by Pres. H. S. Allen.

On behalf of the family Bishop Hicken read letters and telegrams with messages of sympathy and appreciation from the following: Town Council of Raymond, Lions Club of Lethbridge, Mayor Elton of Lethbridge, S. Willows, Dominions Basketball Club, Mayor and Council of Magrath, Ella Miller Bennett and Mrs. Ella K. Miller. Elder John F. Anderson of Cardston was the first speaker and told of his acquaintance with the family of deceased and that of his wife in Utah years ago, also since they had come to Canada. Deceased had always shown a splendid spirit of charity and this spirit of charity and service reached beyond the grave. The meeting of the father with his son in the spirit world, would be glorious. The knowledge of the Gospel removes the sting of death and he was glad that deceased and his good wife understood that plan.

Elder Heber F. Allen of the Stake Presidency appreciated the honesty of deceased, and his interest in Church work. He told of some experiences he had enjoyed with Wm. Meeks while Bishop of the First Ward. Read from Corinthians on the Resurrection.

H. Ostlund of Lethbridge, a lifelong friend of deceased and Solicitor of the Town of Raymond paid high tribute to his spirit of service and his interest in the affairs of the Town and stated that had it not been for deceased's deep interest in Town affairs and his desire to fully discharge his duties he may still be with us.

He had closed his book of earthly activity, and felt sure he was welcomed on the other side where there was work for him to do amongst his friends and relatives there.

O. H. Snow, the concluding speaker stated that he had known deceased longer than any person in the congregation, as they had been boyhood playmates. Next to Mrs. Meeks and the immediate family, he doubted if anyone would miss Wm. Meeks as he would, because for 5 years and more there had hardly been a day when he had not called into the Town Office and spent from a half to three or four hours talking over and discussing Town affairs. Deceased had a wonderful spirit of Charity and Service, he and his wife had fathered and mothered the children of brothers and sisters whenever occasion required, and even on the day of his death he had called at the Hospital to cheer up the sick and discouraged. He had lived to serve his fellowman and was always fighting for what he felt was right.

Bishop Hicken thanked all who had assisted in any way for their kindness and consideration.

A cortege of nearly forty cars followed the remains to the cemetery where interment was made.
